The Subcontinental provides you leading research and analysis on issues that affect the involvement of South Asian Americans in U.S. Policymaking and media.

“As a policymaker for international issues... It would certainly be helpful to find information and analysis of issues relating to South Asia and the Indian American community. The Subcontinental will go a long way towards filling this gap.”

Congressman Joe Wilson (SC)
Co-Chair, Congressional India Caucus

“I know of no other journal like The Subcontinental. Finally, a publication that will give political voice to the South Asian American community. It is an idea whose time has come.”

Sreenath Sreenivasan
Co-founder, South Asian Journalists Association

“The Journal will help galvanize voters and inform policymakers on issues important to South Asian American...”

Varun Nikore
Indian American Leadership Incubator

We hope you will join in this effort. We cannot provide quality perspectives to lawmakers without your involvement and support.

Members of The Subcontinental community understands that:

- 1) America’s greatest strength lies in its diversity.
- 2) An informed community can best contribute to society.
- 3) South Asian Americans have a unique perspective to offer American policymakers. Involving this community will strengthen America.
